Speaker: Mr. Glenn E. Hoffman
Midrex Technologies Inc.

Abstract: Mr. Glenn E. Hoffman is a Metallurgical & Materials Engineer, graduating Illinois Institute of Technology in 1975 and receiving a Masters from Michigan Tech in 1977. Since joining Midrex Technologies, Inc. that year, Mr. Hoffman has been responsible for performing a variety of operations, engineering, and technical support functions, both domestically and in Germany and Japan. He is presently Manager of Product Development for Midrex in Charlotte, NC. He is charged with identifying, assessing, and developing new technologies related to Midrex' core ironmaking and new non-ferrous programs. Areas of responsibility include R&D engineering & managing research and process development programs and projects, including laboratory facilities, pilot plants, prototype plants, market evaluation, and promotional activities associated with commercialization of these new technologies. Mr. Hoffman is currently involved with promoting and developing Midrex FASTMET®, FASTMELT® and ITmk3® technologies, and as part of that role is a Lecturer in SME's Krumb Lecture Program for 2003-2004. We acknowledge and thank Midrex Technologies Inc. for providing his time and travel expenses.

Please R.S.V.P. before 12:00 P.M., March 8, 2004 to give your meal choice.
